ADMISSION OF VIOLATION:

Prior to COVID I hardly ever played online. Once the world was ordered to shelter in place the computer became an integral part of my everyday life. I played online with my partner Myra Rosenberg, and a while later with my husband Norman Braslow.

We played for fun, for entertainment and never with malicious intent. We spoke on the phone and discussed hands. I did not stop to consider that we were actually cheating. I didn't consider that I was putting my opponents at a disadvantage and worst of all dishonoring the game that I love.

I wish to resolve the matter of the charge of Collusive Cheating Online.
 I fully understand the charges and the punishment imposed by the ACBL.
 I am embarrassed and deeply regret my actions.
 This will never happen again.
